4/28 - Tuesday

Very tired from the trip. Thought I was going to rest, then auntie says zhunbei, which means get ready, so off we go.

Stopped for lunch. They like fried fish skins, which I think are all right. They're crunchy but a little greasy.

Then we went shopping. Bought 100 little bags for 18Y. The 1st time she smiled was for the pictures.

Bought more pouches.

Then bought 3 Jin (lbs ) of dried squid. You yu pian. It's delicious.

I'm sitting in a restaurant and a child across the way is a child totally involved in a video game. He was that way for the whole dinner. Ahhh, the way of the next generation.

4/29-5/3

Been doing tons of shopping. Guess we are making up for list time.

Bought bags, slingshots, radio, USB chargers and cables, small utility tools, drone, flip flops, pocket book, belts. All for amazing prices.

Went to LuiRong Ta (6 banyan tree & flower pagoda). It is also where Xing's parents are interred. There is a picture of them. She went because of Ching Ming and also to tell them she was alright after the surgery.

is a picture of them. She went because of Ching Ming and also to tell them she was alright after the surgery.

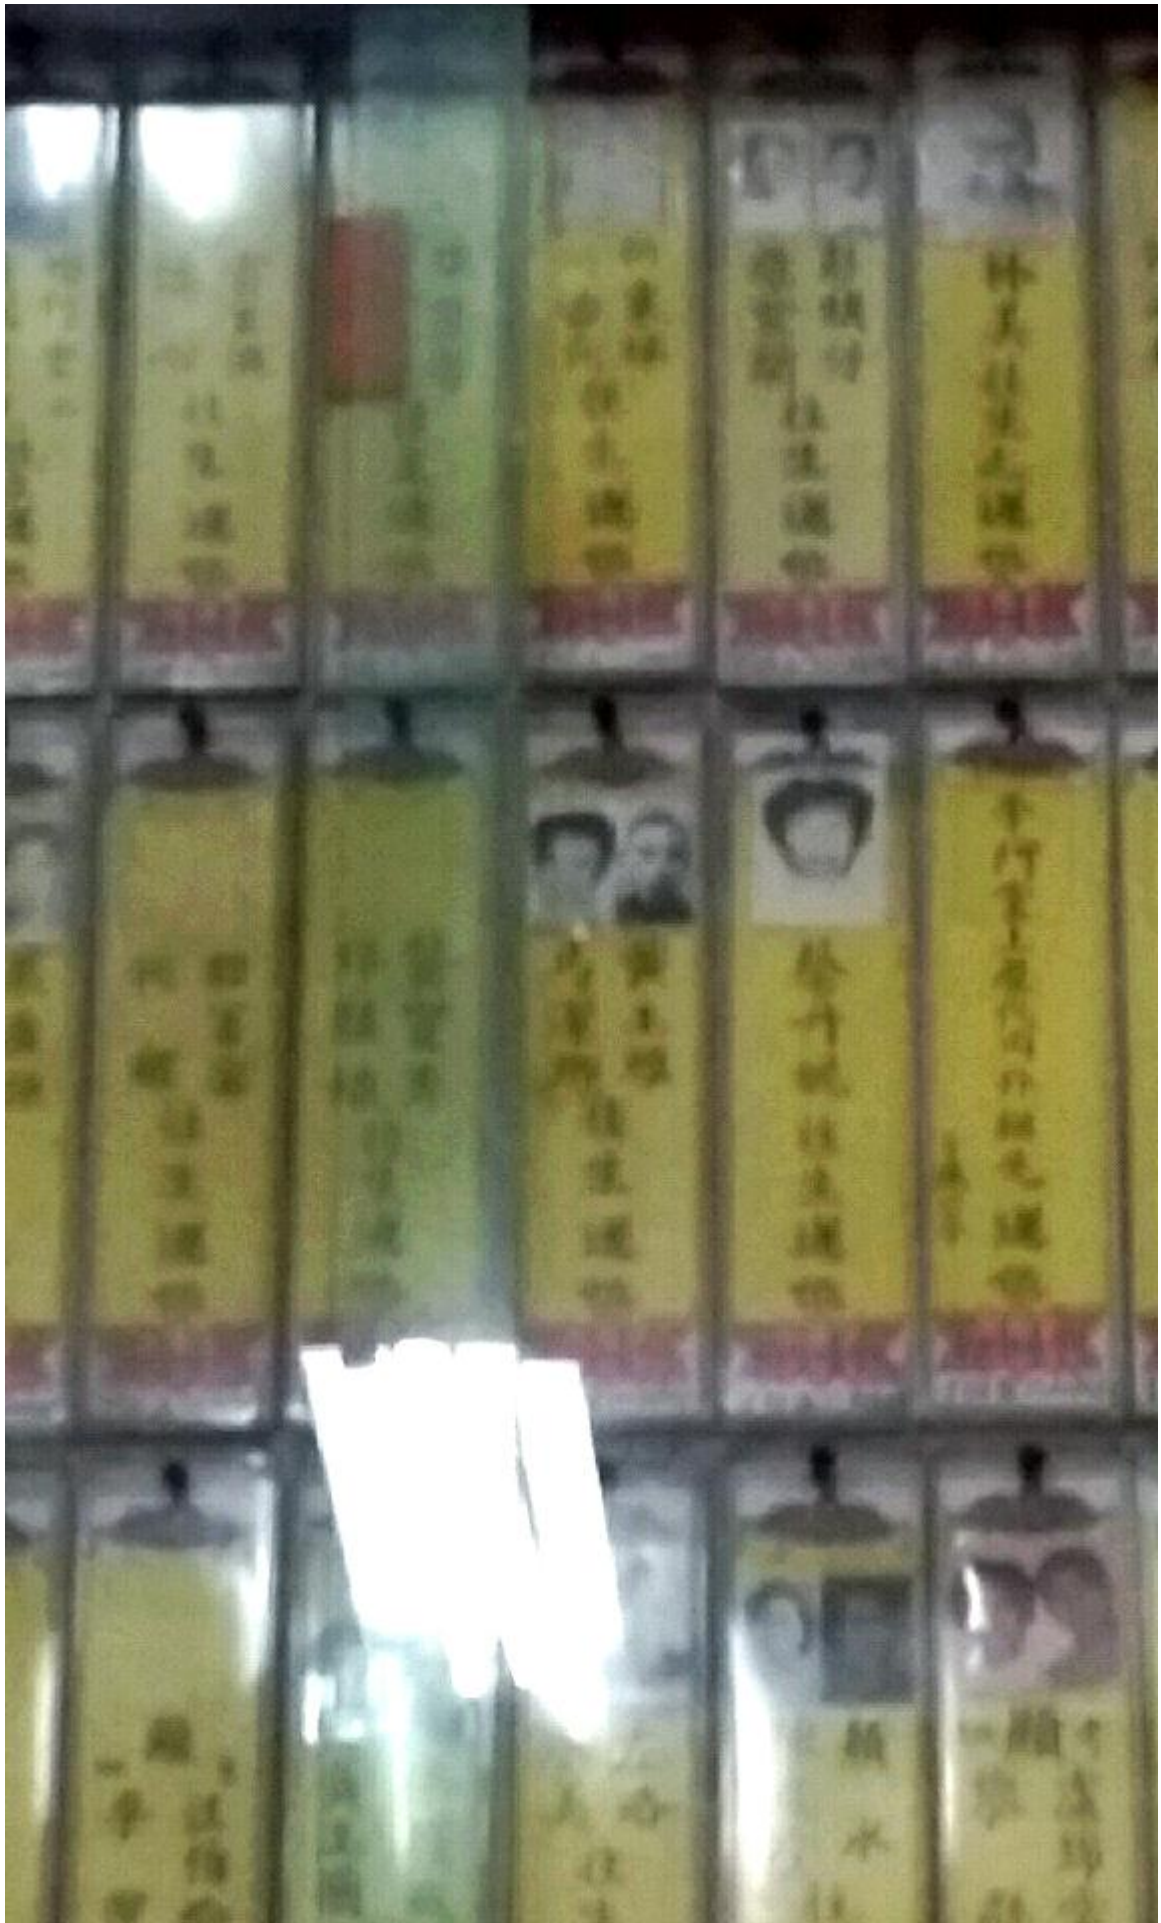

Later walked past a Muslim section of town. Below was one of their mosques.

Here's the construction of the ceiling over a sidewalk.

This is old Guangzhou architecture where the sidewalks are covered so can walk in the rain and not get wet. I think eventually they will all be gone. I love the way they look.

Bought a radio from the girl below. They are into pushing with the peace sign!

5/5 Tuesday

Went to a notary public. It was the most exasperating experience.

REST OF TRIP

Saying good bye meals. Dad's 2nd sister

Then dad said goodbye to all the girls at the electric machine place.

Then a nice meal with Sing's family.

And everyone.

In Guangzhou there are 3 emergency numbers. For fire, for help and for sickness.

Goodbye lunch wing Xing's family.

Then farewells at airport.

Then during layover in Seattle, my family finally meets Merle's family after 26 years.
