Alto Saxophone

Freely

f I can hear not a sound from the pavement 'has the moonlight on the moon, the moonlight lone. In the lamp light a shadow is cast at my feet and the wind is quiet as you are

Mem. Mump and a lisp in the moon light I can smile at the old lamp I was beautiful then I can

Mem. when the time I knew that happiness was left the memory of it is - faint seems to beat a faint, poetic warning some one notices and a street lamp is lit soon it will be morning Day light I was not alone then I was lonely new life and I must not die when the dawn comes - a night will be a night and new day will be - quiet Bury out end of summer, dawn has not yet come morning the street lamp die another light is on another day is dawning f I can hear not a sound from the pavement all a lone with a memory of it is - faint
